February 1, 2010

Dear Junior and Senior Parents and Students,

There is a really exciting educational opportunity for you and your daughter! The accounting firm of Ernst & Young is partnering with Seton High School juniors, seniors and their parents. Ernst & Young will be hosting financial seminars which are optional, free and will be held before the beginning of the regular school day at 7:00 a.m. so parents and students may get to work and school on time! The seminars will pertain to personal finance issues for students as they begin the process of financial independence along with all the ramifications of building good credit and maximizing savings.

This is the first kind of program like this at Seton High School. We are hoping to provide 2 seminars this year. Announcements will be made to students beginning this week with additional details as they evolve. Perk on the Pike Coffee Shop will provide coffee, hot chocolate and light breakfast items for a nominal fee. Plan to attend with your daughter so she is educated on the benefits of good financial planning for her future. Please mark your calendars for the first seminar.
